IMPROVED ROADS

In Ohio, the farmer and the road builder are working on common ground as this state prepares to build five miles of roads constructed of a type of pavement called "soil cement." They have been experimenting for two years to see if mixing cement with native soil, rather than higher priced sand and gravel, might work. This is to be used for secondary roads and if laboratory tests are right, will work successfully. One of the plans of the rural mail carriers is for the improvement of America's 1,950,000 miles of weather-torn dirt roads. Perhaps if this attempt in Ohio is satisfactory, there will be increased building of "farm to market" roads.

JUNK THEM

There is a police judge who has worked out a system for punishing traffic violators and reckless and intemperate motorists. He finds that junking has been the most efficient way of removing more than 500 dangerous and dilapidated cars from the streets and highways. It also cuts down in law violation. The policy of junking these cars, when drivers are found to be using such cars, is a safeguard to other motorists. It is a step forward in our battle for traffic safety. There are few of these old dilapidated models worth more than $10 or $15 and a junk dealer will pay about that much for them.

THROW IT AWAY

You have heard of the Chicago dentist who attached dollar bills to weights and dropped them from his office window into the street. You see he was working on the principle that prosperity could be coaxed back into being if folks would throw money away. It was sucker bait. Now most of us can't afford to cast ten dollar bills from office windows, and if we could, there would be some kind of soul who would see that we were put in the proper institution. Most folks have been reared with the saving for a rainy day, in mind, and the idea of courting prosperity by spending widely, hasn't proved its worth to us.

NO BACKGROUND?

Whenever you hear someone boast of their pet's pedigree and its fancy forebears, you sort of feel sorry for the mutt that just grew up, for no reason. But consider the English non-pedigree cow who has beaten the world's milk yield for twenty-nine days short of a year. The amount was 38,648 pounds of milk. And no pedigree!

This cow, a little red one named "Cherry", is between eight and nine years old. She has had five calves and the owner of Cherry hopes one of the new babies will live to break a record. And then someone will pop up with a song of pedigree and Cherry will feel called upon to produce antecitors from the Mayflower, and spoil the whole thing.

We Quote . . .

from The Everglades News and
The Belle Glade News of
Friday, July 21, 1939:

More Farmers To Till Sand Land

According to Louis Wetman, who with Luther Jones, also a Glades farmer, is developing a section of sand land between Stuart and Port Mayaca adjacent to the State Highway several large Glades growers are entering vegetable operations there next season.

Mr. Wetman stated that certain decided advantages over the muck lands in the production of certain vegetables has made the area one of great potential development. He said that a number of Glades farmers intend to farm both on the muck and on the sand land in order to prolong growing seasons and enlarge the variety of vegetables successfully produced. He also stated that tomatoes can be better produced on the sand, giving a firmer and more marketable variety.

Now . . .

is the time to secure acreage in this fine winter vegetable section — close to the Everglades.

500 Acres

Of This Sand Land Still Available.

Too Late TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay.

Farmers and cattlemen of four south Florida counties — Glades, Hendry, Lee and Charlotte — took time out last week for a little hang-up celebration and with good reason, for the occasion was the opening of the new State Livestock and Produce Market at LaBelle.

Coming from every nook and cranny of the backwoods and from larger cities as well, close to 7,000 people swarmed into Hendry County's county seat for the all day party that proved the big best event in the town's history.

Everyone was in a holiday mood. Cowbells in high-level boots and ten gallon hats mingled with city slickers in white linens and Panama hats; men, women and children all joined in the celebration. The "hunger of the multitude was appeased with an old time barbecue and fourteen beeves were sacrificed on the altar of hospitality and good-will. Those responsible for arranging the party deserve a lot of credit. They certainly did a masterful job, and as a host community LaBelle earned an enviable reputation.

And a generous share of such credit goes personally to W. C. Evans, president of the Chamber of Commerce, the man behind the gun, who acted as Master of Ceremonies and was largely responsible for arranging the excellent program for the auspicious occasion. Both Nathan Mayo, Commissioner of Agriculture, and Director of State Markets William L. Wilson attended the affair and did many other dignitaries, including State Treasurer W. V. Knott, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Collis English, State Senator Henry G. Murphy, and Representatives Elbert L. Stewart and Guy Strayhorn, State Marketing Commissioner L. M. Rhodes, and others.

Commissioner Mayo, as "Daddy" of the State Markets, explained the plan and purpose behind the farmers' market set-up and told his listeners that the state had fulfilled its promise in providing the market and now it was up to the farmers and cattlemen of the territory it served to make it a success.

William L. Wilson, Director of State Markets, pronounced the battle opening one of the most successful he had witnessed and expressed the opinion that it represented a great step forward in securing permanent prosperity for this wonderful cattle producing area of south Florida.

Others on the speaking program included W. V. Knott, Colin English, H. G. Murphy, L. M. Rhodes, Representatives Stewart and Strayhorn, Doyle Carleton and Dr. A. P. Spencer.

The big event of the day, of course, was the auction sale at which 283 head of calves, cows and steers and 14 head of horses were sold. Cattlemen and farmers of the section pocketed $5,928.00 on cattle sales while the horses went under the hammer at an even $1,000, making the total for the day's sale close to $7,000. So great was the jam around the market during the sale that several buyers were unable to get to the cattle pens or auction room. The good ladies of the LaBelle Woman's Club worked themselves into a lather pushing out soft drinks and ice cream from daylight to well after dark, and netted over $400 for their new Club House fund.

Altogether it was a great party and one that LaBelle and Hendry county will long remember.

The successful operation of state markets in Florida has caused this state to become a model for the nation and agricultural officials from many other states have come here to consult Nathan Mayo and William Wilson concerning their set-up and operation. In recognition of their value to the farmer, the Federal government is preparing to cooperate with these states that adopt the plan and provide such markets throughout their agricultural areas, and this action by the Federal government was brought about largely through the remarkable results achieved in Florida.
